SHIP DIPS TWO ARE DEAD AS A RESULT

Army Aviator's Neck Broken
In Trial Trip.

INSTRUCTOR'S SKULL CRUSHED

Leighton W. Hazelhurst, Jr., of Georgia and A. L. Welsh of Wright School Meet Sudden Deaths at College Park, Md., on Tenth Test of New Machine — Nine First Tests Were Pronounced Success—Lieutenant Considered Bright Pupil.

Washington, June 12.—While testing a new Wright biplane at College Park, Md., Lieutenant Leighton W. Hazelhurst, Jr., an army aviator, and Albert W. Welsh, a professional flyer, were dashed to death from a height of 50 feet while the machine was being about 50 miles an hour. It suddenly pitched forward and the occupants were hurled to the ground. When spectators reached the scene of the accident it was found that both men were dead. Lieutenant Hazelhurst's neck was broken and Welsh's skull was crushed. The machine was badly shattered.

The cause of the accident is unknown, though it is believed that one of the supporting wires between the planes snapped suddenly and caused it to plunge forward. An investigation will be held today to determine the cause of the accident. The death of Lieutenant Hazelhurst is the third that has occurred since the army aviators, Lieutenant Thomas C. Selfridge was killed at

KICK ON THE CONVICT LABOR

Belmont County Unions Want Roads Built by Free Labor.

St. Clairsville, O., June 12.—Belmont county commissioners are between two fires—the pleading of 1,000 idle convicts at the Ohio penitentiary for work to save them from sheer madness, and the opposition of union labor throughout the county to employing 200 of the prisoners on constructing a state road from Belmont to Morristown.

The state highway department is trying to force the use of the convicts, setting forth that unless they are employed the state will not be able at this time to help in constructing the road.

Word from Columbus is that several counties are facing similar propositions. Carroll county, which has accepted the offer of 50 convicts, has not yet received them because the prison management has failed to provide tents in which to shelter them.

Big Fraternal Convention Gets Down to Business Today.

Columbus, O., June 12.—Degree teams from the Springfield and Tiffin aerles of the Fraternal Order of Eagles were the only participants in the prize drill given at the A. I. U. hall for the best exemplification of the ritual of the order. The result of the drill will be made known today.

Two hundred delegates and 1,500 members of the order have arrived in the city to take part in the convention. This number is expected to double itself today, and tomorrow, the principal day of the meeting, there may be several thousand members of the order present.

The main feature of the meeting today will be the parade of the visiting aerles, in which 3,000 Eagles are expected to take part.

Considerable interest is manifested in the annual election of officers. This will be held this afternoon. A number of candidates are out with printed cards bearing their photographs.

Relieves His Feelings By Wholesale Killings

Negro Kills Wife and Lover and Fatally Wounds Sister-in-Law.

Columbus, O., June 12.—In a jealous rage Bud M. Anderson, colored, 30, shot and killed his wife and Joe Clark, who he asserted, had been paying attention to her, and probably fatally wounded Miss Mary Howard, his sister-in-law. He shot at a fourth person, "Kid" Clark, colored, friend of the other Clark, but missed. He is under arrest.

The tragedy was enacted in two scenes. The shooting of the women occurred in East Fifth avenue and the murder of Clark was committed on the steps of a saloon at Nineteenth street and Chase avenue.

According to Anderson's story to the police, the two Clarks, concerning whom he said he knew nothing, had been paying secret attention to his wife and her sister. He charged that, because of one of the men, his wife left him.

Judge Nichols Turned Down.

Coshocton, O., June 12.—Attorney W. S. Hanna of Millersburg was nominated for common pleas judge by Democrats of this district, in convention, over Judge Samuel H. Nicholas of Coshocton, who was refused a second term.

Renominate Judge Donnelly.

Lima, O., June 12.—Judge Michael Donnelly of Henry county won out handsly in the convention of delegates representing the 16 counties comprising the Democratic third circuit court judicial district, held in Lima.

TAFT ADDS TO HIS LIST

Roosevelt Campaigners Ready to Admit That National Convention Will Be Controlled by the President's Friends, but Continue Fight Against Root as Temporary Chairman—LaFollette So Far Has Refused to Enter Combination.

Chicago, June 12.—That the Taft cohorts will control the temporary organization of the Republican national convention, the committee on credentials and the committee on resolutions, is now realized by the Roosevelt chieftains, who are redoubling their efforts to organize a combination by which they can defeat Senator Root for temporary chairman. They have had further negotiations with Senator LaFollette adherents in Wisconsin. In a word, the proposition of the Roosevelt people to the LaFollette folks was to the effect that Governor Francis C. McGovern of Wisconsin should be made temporary chairman of the convention through a combination of the Roosevelt delegates and the LaFollette delegates. The LaFollette delegates could not see it that way.

New York Roosevelt delegates declare that such a combination could not be contemplated for the reason that Governor Deneen and a number of Illinois delegates, the latter committed to Roosevelt, and the Roosevelt delegates from other states would not go to LaFollette's man any more than LaFollette's men would coalesce with Colonel Roosevelt and his friends in an effort to carry out this proposition. Senator LaFollette, it is added, is to stick to his candidate for temporary chairman, Senator Green of North Dakota.

It is now evident that Senator Cummins, who has 10 delegates in the convention, will name Senator Kenyon as the Cummins candidate for temporary chairman. Thus the LaFollette delegates, 36 in all, 26 from Wisconsin and 10 from North Dakota, and the Cummins 10, or 46 in all, will not enter into any combination with Colonel Roosevelt and his campaigners to bring about the defeat of Senator Root. It is not believed that these delegates are partial to Senator Root, but they are very much opposed to Colonel Roosevelt, especially the LaFollette men. They believe but for Colonel Roosevelt Senator LaFollette would have been the chief opponent of President Taft in this convention for the nomination.

Is Simon-Pure Candidate.

Senator Cummins, in the estimation of both the Taft and the Roosevelt men, is a Simon-pure candidate for president. Senator Cummins' friends believe that the Taft and Roosevelt opposing forces will bring about a deadlock in this convention, out of which eventually will come Senator Cummins as the candidate for president. Underneath all these claims, though, it is believed that the real aim of the Cummins candidacy is the nomination for the vice presidency. This talk is distasteful to the New Yorkers, who feel that if President Taft is to be renominated, certainly Vice President Sherman is entitled to the same honor. Among the Republican aspirants are Governor Hadley of Missouri, Governor Johnson of California, Governor Mead of Vermont, Senator Borah, ex-Vice President Fairbanks and Governor Stubbs of Kansas.

Coincident with the arrival of Mr. Barnes there was further talk of a compromise candidate to come out of the convention, and the name of Charles J. Hughes came to the front again. One of the closest friends of President Taft said concerning Justice Hughes: "The president is perfectly aware that Justice Hughes is not a candidate and will not be a candidate for this nomination. That is positive."

The Roosevelt delegate was seated in the last contest of the day, the Eleventh Kentucky congressional district, where the two Roosevelt dele-

Owens Bottle Company of Toledo Raises Objection to Valuation of $10,000 on Each of 27 Machines Leased to Newark Concern—Is Handed Severe Jolt When State Taxers Fix Assessable Value at $40,000 Each.

Columbus, O., June 12.—In fixing a high basis for the taxation of royalty-paying machines under lease, the state tax commission has made a finding of far-reaching effect.

The finding affects primarily the Owens Bottle Machine company of Toledo, manufacturers of a machine that has put many bottle blowers out of their trade. Involved in the same question, however, are the machines used by shoe manufacturers, under lease, and on which royalties are paid; mining machinery, linotype machines and other royalty machines.

Clement C. Riley, auditor of Licking county, in an investigation of the assessment of the property of the American Bottle works at Newark, found a number of machines not owned by the company, and therefore not legally assessable against it. He found the machines were owned by the Owens Bottle Machine company of Toledo, and that they were rented to the Newark concern on a royalty basis. Mr. Riley therefore assessed the machines against the Owens people and appraised them at $10,000 each.

The Toledo concern complained, but securing no reduction appealed to the state tax commission. The company filed voluminous briefs and papers contending the machines should be taxed at only $1,000, as originally returned to the auditor by it.

Most Perfect Machine.

The commission in its investigation found that the Owens machine was regarded as one of the most remarkable inventions of the age, for from the time the raw material enters the machine until the bottles come out ready for shipment, it is not touched by the hand of a workman. The cost of production of one of the machines approximates $15,000.

All of the patents except the machine were sold by the Owens Bottle Machine company to the American Bottle company, but the title to the machine was retained as security for the payment of royalty. The Owens concern put the machines out under a license to manufacture a certain kind of bottle, the style of which was named in the contract upon which the machine was let.

As all of the royalties paid the Owens concern were not attributable to the machines alone, the commission was compelled to ascertain what proportion of the royalty was attributable to the machine. It found an average of 40 per cent of the total royalty, or about $4,000 a year for each machine, was paid the Owens company.

The commission immediately reappraised the value of the machines at $40,000, making a total assessment on the 27 machines used by the American Bottle works at $1,088,840, as against the $27,000 value returned by the company and $270,000 as returned by the county auditor, and has certified its findings to the auditor of Licking county, with instructions to correct his duplicate accordingly.

Bids Farewell To Ohio Work Record Crowd At S. S. Meet

Dr. Joseph Clark Talks at Sunday School Convention.

Columbus, O., June 12.—Sunday school leaders predict 10,000 marchers in the parade of men honoring Bible study this evening. The record parade was 13,000 marchers in Cleveland, while the preceding convention marched 7,000 at Dayton.

The music of the convention is a feature. Homer Rodaheaver, who is well known as Billy Sunday's right-hand man, is leading the delegates and visitors in examples of gospel singing as it should be sung, and occasionally he takes a trombone in hand and leads the singing, varying the severe strains of the hymns with fanciful variations. The piano accompaniment is done by Charles H. Gabriel, Jr., son of the famous gospel song composer.

Last night's services opened with a Rodaheaver series of songs. Drs. W. O. Thompson and Luther B. Freeman welcomed the convention. Dr. Lansing spoke on "The Spiritual Value of Social Service, and President Henry C. King of Oberlin college talked on "Facing the Facts of Life."

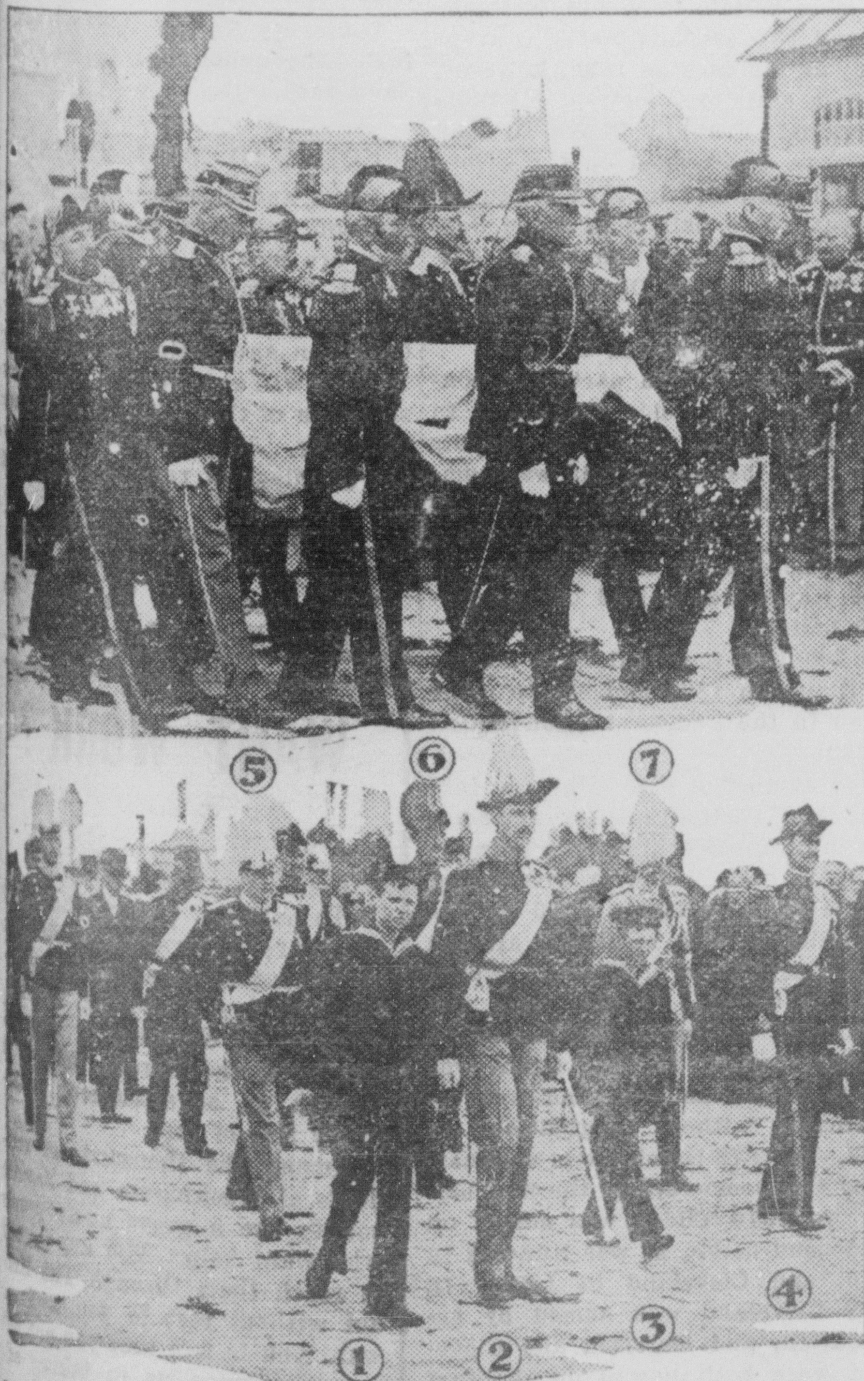

One of the leading features of today's session was the farewell address of Dr. Joseph Clark, who for 13 years has administered the affairs of the association and who now goes to New York to become superintendent of the New York State Sunday School association. Thousands of Dr. Clark's friends were present to bid him farewell. Immediately after his address, in which he thanked the Sunday school workers of the state for their hearty co-operation in the work, Dr. Clark left for Batavia, N. Y., where he will be introduced to his new constituency.

The convention represents 8,000 Sunday schools with an enrollment of 1,250,000 pupils.

Sunday Excursions To Be Resumed Very Shortly

C. would fall in line shortly and that the Big Four and Pennsylvania lines would fall in line before July 1.

FOUR reigning monarchs, the kings of Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Greece, followed the body of Frederick VIII. to its tomb in the abbey of Roskilde, where lie the remains of thirty-three predecessors of the late king. Many representatives of foreign countries were present at the services in the cathedral, and in the funeral procession, of which a photograph is reproduced above, walked the male members of the Danish royal family—the new king, Christian X. (2); the Crown Prince Frederick (1); King Haakon of Norway (4); brother of King Christian; Prince Gustav (5) and Prince Harold (7); brothers of King Christian; Prince Axel (6), cousin, and Prince Land (3), the king's second son. The other photograph shows the late king's coffin, borne from the royal yacht which brought it from Hamburg on the shoulders of colonels representing the various arms of the Danish service.

Will Ask For More Bonds

The Sabina Board of Education has called an election for June 27th to decide the question of issuing $5,000 additional bonds for paying the remaining indebtedness on the new school building which was recently finished.

When the new $40,000 building was destroyed by fire, the $23,000 insurance money with an additional $12,000 bond issue was used in rebuilding, but the cost of renting and equipping a place in which to hold school, proved too much for the $35,000 and the additional bond issue was called for.

"WORN TO A FRAZZLE."

When President Roosevelt popularized the word "frazzle" he reminded lots of women of the only expression that tells how they feel after the work of washday or housecleaning with common old yellow laundry soap. Easy Task laundry soap—the hard, pure, white quick-action soap—cuts the work square in two and keeps women from getting frazzled out.

HOW OLD WE ARE MUCH MOOTED QUESTION SEEMS ANSWERED AT LAST

Mr. Joe N. Wilson Submits an Old Local Paper Which Settles the Date of the Birth of the Two Old Established Papers.

ACCORDING TO BEST AUTHORITY

Both The Herald and The Ohio State Register Are Well in Their 80th Year and Enjoying Very Good Health.

Speculation has been rife for a good many years as to just what the age of Washington's oldest newspapers, The Herald and The Ohio State Register really is. In addition to this, the further question as to which one was the older, has also been argued pro and con for a good many years.

Old papers and old files galore have been submitted and the testimony of "oldest inhabitants" obtained with a view to settling these questions for all time.

Until Mr. Joe N. Wilson very kindly brought to the attention of the publishers an old newspaper which had been in the possession of his family a great many years, no positive proof was obtained.

The newspaper which Mr. Wilson presents is the "Washington Herald and Fayette County Register" and it bears date of November 17th, 1832.

It is a five column, four page paper in a good state of preservation, aside from being quite yellow with age. The issue is No. 7 of Vol. 1.

According to this indisputable evidence, both papers were born about October 5th, 1832 or 80 years ago next October and one argument is settled.

As to the other argument which is the older paper, the judges must from the evidence now at hand declare a draw. There are some who still insist on keeping up that prong of the argument and assert that they remember of having heard that The Herald was in the field back in the twenties, and that an outsider in-isted on starting and did start another paper which he called The Register, subsequently the two owners combined their plants and started the double paper. Others still insist that The Register was started first and The Herald came in afterward. As to these statements no proof is offered and the documentary evidence of Vol. 1, No. 7 must stand as establishing both heretofore disputed facts conclusively.

It is remarkable that the two papers should have started their career together and having subsequently drifted apart, should after the lapse of 79 long years come once more under one management.

Both papers have had stormy histories during the years they have been apart. The Register having perhaps the most tempestuous course, but they have survived all ills and are hale and hearty in the 80th year of their existence.

MILLEDGEVILLE TO HAVE ELECTRIC STREET LIGHTS

Poles All Set and Blaze of Electric Light Will Be Shed on Enterprising Village Sometime Next Week—Sixteen Lights to Cost $400 Per Annum.

Milledgeville is forging rapidly to the front and preparing to don genuine metropolitan garb of electric lights and a three-story building.

Milledgeville, although possessing a population of about 200, is full of enterprise, and within the next week or ten days will be lighted by electricity, and a number of the residences and places of business will be lighted in this manner. The three-story building referred to is the Odd Fellows' building now under contemplation.

For several days a gang of men have been at work setting poles from Parrotts Station across country to Milledgeville, and all of the poles are now in place and the work of stringing the wires will commence within the present week and be completed by next week some time.

The electricity will be supplied from this city, and through the line leading to Jeffersonville, the tap being made at Parrotts Station.

Milledgeville will have sixteen incandescent street lights, each lamp of 60 candle power, or the same as those in New Holland and Bloomingburg which have given so much satisfaction.

The cost to the village will be $400 per year, or in excess of $2 per annum for each man, woman and child in the town.

For the past year or two negotiations have been under way for lighting the village from this city, and recently the contract was made and work commenced on the line at once.

That the introduction of lights in the town will be the signal for a general boom, is the general opinion of the citizens in general. No new machinery will be installed at the local plant to handle the increased drain on the "juice" generated.

column. The paper carried a "selected poetry" column and a serial story. Ireland was then fighting for "home rule" just as vigorously as now.

Another item of interest as mirroring the times is this one:

"A coloured man of the Baptist denomination will preach at the Methodist meeting house on Thursday evening next, at early candle light."

And this item:

"The yellow fever still continues to rage at New Orleans, and is likely to prove a serious embarrassment to business in that city."

And still another item of great interest which brings history close to us all:

"From recent accounts we learn that the cholera has nearly ceased its ravages in the city of Cincinnati and that health and tranquillity is again restored to its inhabitants.

Families that left the city to escape the pestilence, are now returning to their homes and business is resuming its usual state of activity."

And this one too:

"We had anticipated being able to present to our readers with the result of the presidential elections in this and adjoining states, but contrary to our expectations no satisfactory intelligence has yet reached us from either Kentucky or Indiana.

"We are, however, able to state, that the Jackson electoral ticket has succeeded in this state and Pennsylvania by triumphant majorities."

Think of it, before the days of telegraph, before the days of railroads, before the days of postage stamps, The Herald was giving the news to the people of that day in this locality just as it is today 80 years later.

The old paper is a prize indeed.

Ice for Everybody Motor Truck Used

About June 20th, the Washington Ice Company will begin a Motor Truck ice delivery service, which will put an end to the difficult problem of supplying towns and farming communities with pure manufactured ice.

It will be impossible to lay out a route to the various towns and over the numerous highways within a radius of 25 miles of Washington, until inquiries are received at the Ice Company office, and all those wishing to take advantage of a first class ice delivery service, should call either Bell or Citizens telephone No. 198, or write The Washington Ice Co., Washington C. H., and arrange to have the truck deliver any amount from 100 pounds to three tons at a time.

Applications for the agencies of the various towns will be considered.

STRAINED LIGAMENTS.

Mr. H. D. Johnson met with a dangerous fall Tuesday at his home on the Greenfield pike. Mr. Johnson was quite a distance from the ground on the top of a ladder looking after some weather boarding on one of his houses when he slipped and fell to the ground.

The ligaments in the leg are painfully sprained and a number of bruises are causing considerable discomfort.

Mr. Johnson is fortunate to escape as well without more serious injuries.

Mrs. Lela Love, wife of Wiley Love, a farmer living near Covena, Ga., says: "I have taken Foley's Kidney Pills and find them to be all you claim for them. They gave me almost instant relief when my kidneys were sluggish and inactive. I cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers of kidney troubles." Foley's Kidney Pills are as carefully made and as scientifically compounded as any medicine your home doctor can give you. They act directly on the kidneys and bladder. Blackmer and Tanquary.

The National Convention Ballot

It has been twenty-four years since more than five ballots were required to nominate a candidate for president in conventions of either of the two great political parties. The only promise of a larger number of ballots than that this year appears to be in the Democratic convention at Baltimore. It is probable that the Republican contest will be settled on the first ballot.

There have been only a few contests in the history of national party conventions where there were a larger number of ballots taken. The Democratic convention of 1860 holds the record on that score. It required fifty-nine ballots to nominate Douglas, and two sessions of the convention. As far back as 1852, however, the Democrats took forty-nine ballots to nominate Franklin Pierce. In 1856 Buchanan was named on the seventeenth ballot, and in 1868 it required twenty-two ballots to name Seymour. The highest number of ballots in any other Democratic convention, however, was only nine, when Polk was named in 1844.

In the Republican party the convention of 1880 holds the record. In that convention thirty-six ballots were taken before Garfield was nominated. The next highest was in the convention of 1888, when Harrison was named on the eighth ballot. In 1876 Hayes was named on the seventh ballot.

It required four ballots to nominate Blaine in 1884 and five to name Bryan in the Democratic convention of 1896.

The number of first ballot nominations and nominations by acclamation in national conventions is interesting to note. Lincoln was named on the third ballot in 1860 by the Republicans, and receiving all the votes except those of Missouri, which went to Grant. In that year the Democrats nominated McClellan on the first ballot. In 1868 Grant was named by acclamation and was re-nominated without opposition in 1872. In 1872 Greeley was nominated by the Democrats on the first ballot. In 1876 Tilden was named on the second ballot, as was Hancock in 1880, and Cleveland in 1884. In 1888 Cleveland was named by acclamation, and Harrison and Cleveland were both named on the first ballot in 1892. In 1896 McKinley was named on the first ballot, and in 1900 renominated by acclamation, and Bryan was named by acclamation that year. In 1904 Roosevelt was nominated by acclamation and Alton B. Parker on the first ballot. In 1908 Taft and Bryan were named on the first ballot.

First ballot nominations or nominations by acclamation have been the rule in both parties in recent years.—Kansas City Star.

Annual Flag Day Friday, June 14

Friday, June 14th is "Flag Day" and all patriotic citizens are urged to display the National colors in profusion on that day in commemoration of the birth of the Stars and Stripes. As the patriotic spirit is not lacking in Washington, there is sure to be thousands of flags of all sizes floating in the breeze Friday. Flag Day is a day of devotional thought for the blessings enjoyed under the protection of the greatest flag the world has ever known—a flag blood-bought in two wars, the first for its establishment and the second for its continuance, "that that nation might live."

Let every flag in the city be unfurled throughout the day on Friday, June 14th.

The Sabina Board of Education has called an election for June 27th to decide the question of issuing $5,000 additional bonds for paying the remaining indebtedness on the new school building which was recently finished.

When the new $40,000 building was destroyed by fire, the $23,000 insurance money with an additional $12,000 bond issue was used in rebuilding, but the cost of renting and equipping a place in which to hold school, proved too much for the $35,000 and the additional bond issue was called for.

HOW OLD WE ARE MUCH MOOTED QUESTION SEEMS ANSWERED AT LAST

Mr. Joe N. Wilson Submits an Old Local Paper Which Settles the Date of the Birth of the Two Old Established Papers.

ACCORDING TO BEST AUTHORITY

Both The Herald and The Ohio State Register Are Well in Their 80th Year and Enjoying Very Good Health.

Speculation has been rife for a good many years as to just what the age of Washington's oldest newspapers, The Herald and The Ohio State Register really is. In addition to this, the further question as to which one was the older, has also been argued pro and con for a good many years.

Old papers and old files galore have been submitted and the testimony of "oldest inhabitants" obtained with a view to settling these questions for all time.

Until Mr. Joe N. Wilson very kindly brought to the attention of the publishers an old newspaper which had been in the possession of his family a great many years, no positive proof was obtained.

The newspaper which Mr. Wilson presents is the "Washington Herald and Fayette County Register" and it bears date of November 17th, 1832.

It is a five column, four page paper in a good state of preservation, aside from being quite yellow with age. The issue is No. 7 of Vol. 1.

According to this indisputable evidence, both papers were born about October 5th, 1832 or 80 years ago next October and one argument is settled.

As to the other argument which is the older paper, the judges must from the evidence now at hand declare a draw. There are some who still insist on keeping up that prompt of the argument and assert that they remember of having heard that The Herald was in the field back in the twenties, and that an outsider in-isted on starting and did start another paper which he called The Register, subsequently the two owners combined their plants and started the double paper. Others still insist that The Register was started first and The Herald came in afterward. As to these statements no proof is offered and the documentary evidence of Vol. 1, No. 7 must stand as establishing both heretofore disputed facts conclusively.

It is remarkable that the two papers should have started their career together and having subsequently drifted apart, should after the lapse of 79 long years come once more under one management.

Both papers have had stormy histories during the years they have been apart, The Register having perhaps the most tempestuous course, but they have survived all ills and are hale and hearty in the 80th year of their existence.

The present Herald was started in 1858 after the older Herald had been out of commission a number of years.

column. The paper carried a "selected poetry" column and a serial story. Ireland was then fighting for "home rule" just as vigorously as now.

Another item of interest as mirroring the times is this one:

"A coloured man of the Baptist denomination will preach at the Methodist meeting house on Thursday evening next, at early candle light."

PLENTY OF BOSSES
ON D. T. & I. ROAD

Claim Made That New Receiver, Geo. P. Johnson, and G. K. Lowell Both Issue Instructions.

A QUESTION OF WHO IS WHO

One of Old Receivers Alleged to Have Been Kicked Out and Then Returned by Knickerbocker Trust Company—Two Big Trusts Owning Heavy Interests in Road Watch Each Other With Jealous Eyes.

In railroad circles it is rumored that there are too many bosses on the D. T. & I. railroad, and that the new receiver, George P. Johnson has found his position anything else but a bed of thornless roses.

A man familiar with the road who was in this city a day or two ago, stated that the old receivers, or one of them at least, had been put back on the job, presumably for the purpose of looking after the interests of the Knickerbocker Trust Company, or the H. B. Hollis Company, of New York.

It seems that when the new receiver stepped in, the old receivers were "kicked out" and that Receiver Johnson was just beginning to get an insight into affairs, when George K. Lowell returned, armed with sufficient authority to guarantee his being taken back. His son-in-law, J. A. Stubel was also taken back, and although Lowell was shorn of the full power of receivership, he has been issuing orders once more, and takes an active part in the workings of the road, it is asserted, and in this he is being assisted by J. A. Strubel.

The new receiver and the former receiver both issue instructions on the road, it is claimed, so that many of the employees do not know whether they are working under Boss Johnson or Boss Lowell.

The offer upon the part of the Knickerbocker Trust Company to advance $5,000,000 for the purpose of improving the road and placing it in something like fair condition, was turned down, it seems, the Hollis Company raising objection, presumably entertaining the fear that the act, if permitted, would give the Knickerbocker people the advantage over the Hollis people.

It is understood that Receiver Johnson has passed the word out that he will not stand for holding up employees salaries for a considerable length of time as has been the case many times under the management of the old receivers.

The Chaotic condition of affairs may cause further court proceedings to "straighten up" the trouble once more.

Objects to Rotation Rule for Senators

The Scioto Gazette of Tuesday, mentioning the Senatorial convention which will be held here Friday, of this week says:

"The senatorial convention of this district meets at Washington C. H. on Friday, June 14th. Under the rotten rule of rotation, it is Green county's turn at the pie counter. It seems that Green has been unable to decide upon a candidate and has three favorite sons seeking the job. Unless Green presents only one the other counties will be called upon to make a selection and will not be bound by the rule.

"It is to be devoutly hoped that Green will not agree upon any one and that the rotten rule will be broken beyond the possibility of repair. The best available man should be nominated, elected and re-elected as long as he gives good and faithful service.

"The district with one term senators loses all chance of experienced services or influence acquired by demonstrated character and ability. Every Ross county delegate should attend the convention and see that a good nomination is made."

If the rule of rotation is disregarded, Fayette county will be among those at liberty to place a man in the field. The Fifty-sixth Senatorial district is composed of Fayette, Greene, Ross, Highland and Clinton counties.

At the present time Senators G. W. Holdren of Bloomington and Coke L. Doster, of Highland county, represent the Fifty-sixth district.

Street Cars No Place for "Souuses"

The "souuse" at last has gotten it good and proper, at least the "souuse" on a street car, for a Pennsylvania judge has decided that he must either walk or hire a taxicab, for he has no place on a public conveyance.

A "souuse," infant child, is one who has looked not wisely but too freely upon the ambrosial decoction of malt and hops, or the more fiery output of the rye and corn. In plain English, he is one who is "ossified," "pickled," "spifflicated," or any one of half a dozen other things.

There are various degrees of ossification, pickling, and spifflication, for the "souuse" is as temperamental as a prima donna. They run the gamut from the laughing "souuse" to the crying "souuse," with all the intermediate shadings. There is the "souuse" who tells you all his family and financial troubles the first time he meets you; there is the "souuse" who clings to you like a long-lost brother when your best girl is in the offing; there is the "souuse" who sings or thinks he does; there is the "souuse" who runs amuck and wants to fight with every one.

But, to return to our mutton, the Pennsylvania judge who had inaugurated a new era in America jurisprudence by ruling in the interest of the people against the "souuse," it is Judge McKenna of Pittsburgh who had the nerve to declare that a "souuse" had no right on a street car. This means of conveyance, says the learned jurist, is for sober, industrious, respectable people, who do not want to tell their troubles to their unfortunate neighbor. The decision was handed down in a suit instituted by a woman who, while a passenger on a street car, had her dress damaged by a "souuse" and who thereupon brought suit against the street car company. Judge McKenna held that it was the duty of the conductor to throw the "souuse" off the car.

True, this would be a trifle hard on some of the light-weight conductors if it happens to be a big, burly, fighting "souuse"—but, come to think of it, did you ever notice the "fighting souuses" are always meek, little, inoffensive men who normally would not even swat a fly?

Sure, let the "souuse" take a taxi! —Commercial Tribune.

PLENTY OF BOSSES ON D. T. & I. ROAD

Claim Made That New Receiver, Geo. P. Johnson, and G. K. Lowell Both Issue Instructions.

A QUESTION OF WHO IS WHO

One of Old Receivers Alleged to Have Been Kicked Out and Then Returned by Knickerbocker Trust Company—Two Big Trusts Owning Heavy Interests in Road Watch Each Other With Jealous Eyes.

In railroad circles it is rumored that there are too many bosses on the D. T. & I. railroad, and that the new receiver, George P. Johnson has found his position anything else but a bed of thornless roses.

A man familiar with the road who was in this city a day or two ago, stated that the old receivers, or one of them at least, had been put back on the job, presumably for the purpose of looking after the interests of the Knickerbocker Trust Company, or the H. B. Hollis Company, of New York.

It seems that when the new receiver stepped in, the old receivers were "kicked out" and that Receiver Johnson was just beginning to get an insight into affairs, when George K. Lowell returned, armed with sufficient authority to guarantee his being taken back. His son-in-law, J. A. Strubel was also taken back, and although Lowell was shorn of the full power of receivership, he has been issuing orders once more, and takes an active part in the workings of the road, it is asserted, and in this he is being assisted by J. A. Strubel.

The new receiver and the former receiver both issue instructions on the road, it is claimed, so that many of the employees do not know whether they are working under Boss Johnson or Boss Lowell.

The offer upon the part of the Knickerbocker Trust Company to advance $5,000,000 for the purpose of improving the road and placing it in something like fair condition, was turned down, it seems, the Hollins Company raising objection, presumably entertaining the fear that the act, if permitted, would give the Knickerbocker people the advantage over the Hollins people.

It is understood that Receiver Johnson has passed the word out that he will not stand for holding up employees salaries for a considerable length of time as has been the case many times under the management of the old receivers.

The chaotic condition of affairs may cause further court proceedings to "straighten up" the trouble once more.

PERRY'S VICTORY CENTENNIAL.

Something out of the ordinary in the way of centennial celebration is the promise for the Perry's Victory Centennial to be held in 1913.

Elaborate preparations are now going forward in several states, Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky among them, and the federal government is also making preparations for taking a generous part in this celebration to commemorate the great victory of Commodore Perry on Lake Erie during the war of 1812.

Every school child is familiar with the great painting which hangs in the rotunda of the capitol and which is copied in nearly every geography and history used in the schools of this section of the state.

Commodore Perry left his sinking flag-ship, took the life boat with a small detachment of sailors and carried his flag to another vessel of the fleet, directing successfully the great naval battle which resulted in a victory announced in the much quoted message, "We have met the enemy and they are ours."

The Centennial commissions have planned to have every craft of the national navy that go through the Welland canal join in the commemoration of this famous victory and an immense fleet of cruisers, submarines and torpedo boats will be in Lake Erie for the first time.

The Commissioners are also beginning to send out their "press notices" and we may expect, from this time forward, to read a great deal about the plans for the coming Centennial.

It will be the "nearest home" to Ohio people of any of the great expositions and will receive great encouragement from the people of the Buckeye state, who for some reason or other have always looked upon "Perry's Victory" as an Ohio achievement.

While the people have become surfeited, to an extent, with expositions and celebrations, this is one which should attract great crowds from the central states, because of the peculiar local interest which the residents of those states have always insisted on attaching to the event which the celebration is to commemorate.

PAVING THE STREETS.

The City Council is, just now, both on its own motion and upon the petition of property owners, considering seriously the matter of paving more of our streets in whole or in part with brick.

It is the general opinion that the more consideration the people accord to this proposal the better it will appeal to them. The condition of our streets has long been a problem with which our officials have been compelled to wrestle, and rare indeed are the instances recorded where the officials got the best of the wrestling match.

And while our officials have been compelled to listen to tales of woe and complaints without number, the people who are compelled to travel them, have been jolted into a fury by the "awful condition" of the streets.

While it may cost the property owners a little more at the start to pave the streets with brick, yet once it is done, a good street would be assured for a long time, perhaps during the life of the major portion of the property owners who consent to the improvement.

If the new streets are paved there will be no repairs to be made within a short time and consequently no fight and wrangle with officials to get them to repair the street, which in about eight cases out of ten the effort results in nothing but a row because the municipality is not in financial condition to make the repairs.

While no special plan of doing this paving work is recommended, yet it would seem wise, and in the end economical for the property owners to adopt the paving plan.

If the City Council can work out a plan by which the property owners and the public may, in certain instances, share the expense, and in other cases property owners alone stand the cost, making the paving complete in one case and partial only in the other, the suggestion is a good one.

The adoption of some plan to give Washington more paved streets would be a tremendous boost for the city.

We are shy on paved streets and we must come to the front or suffer the consequences in loss of prestige.

Council can afford to give this paving project earnest consideration now that it is up. It is a serious one. Settled right it means much of good and settled wrong it means back in the rut with a clug.

Let's pave the streets if we can.

THE UNKNOWN BIRD.

A bird flew out on a summer day,
Far over the sparkling sea,
His flight was light and his heart
was gay
As he flitted about in the brightest
ray,
For he loved the air of the sea.

The sunlight faded—the day was gone,
A wind blew out of the sea,
But the reckless bird flew on and on,
And thought, "After night will come
the dawn",
For he was exultant and free.

But the bird grew weak, and the storm grew strong;
There were monsters in the sea,
Then the morn broke bright, but no
fair song
Broke from the bird, for he was gone
Down into the depth of the sea.

But birds yet fair o'er the ocean fly,
Proud and exultant and free,
And storms still blow and birds still
die,
And they never will cease to fly and
die,
In the boundless home of the sea.

For birds were born with the burning love
Of the treacherous, powerful sea;
And they will obey the power alone,
Making the ocean their native home,
And forever fly o'er the sea.

Lillian Russell and Publisher Moore Tell Guests to Keep Mum.

Pittsburg, June 12.—The long-expected wedding of Lillian Russell, actress, and Alexander P. Moore of Pittsburg, took place at 10 o'clock this morning in this city. Invitations were sent out to a few friends of Miss Russell and Mr. Moore and with each card went an admonition against publicity. Just why there should be secrecy thrown around the affair is known only to Mr. Moore, and he won't tell.

Miss Russell's latest venture in matrimony was attended by some discomforts. She arrived at 2 o'clock this morning on the Weber & Fields special train from Cincinnati. Wedded at 10 in the morning, Miss Russell got little time for rest until the afternoon matinee. After the evening performance the show moves to Chicago. Mr. Moore, who is publisher of the Pittsburg Leader, will go to Chicago tonight to remain until the close of the Republican national convention.

DECISIONS REVERSED BY THE CIRCUIT COURT

Attorneys Rogers and Chaffin Win Famous Sabina Bootlegging Cases.

CLAIM MAYOR USURPED POWER

Peculiar Tangle in Which S. T. Grove and Roy Gable Escape Paying Heavy Fines Assessed Two Years After Offense Was Committed, Judgment Having Been Deferred Pending Good Behavior.

Another turn was taken in the famous Grove and Gable liquor cases of Sabina recently, when the Circuit Court reversed the decisions of the former Mayor of Sabina and the Common Pleas court of Clinton county, holding that fines assessed against the two men after a lapse of two years from the time of hearing the cases, was done by the Mayor usurping a power which did not belong to him.

The defendants were represented by Attorneys F. A. Chaffin and W. B. Rogers of this city, and the State by Attorneys J. A. White, J. T. Doan and J. M. Morton of Clinton county. The defendants were S. T. Grove and Roy Gable.

The action was started against the two men on November 15, 1909, and both were charged with keeping a place where intoxicants were sold as a beverage.

On the charge they were tried before Mayor George C. Barns, and on December 17, 1909, the two men withdrew their pleas of not guilty and entered pleas of guilty.

In the first case Groves was fined $200 and the costs, and Gable $100, all of which was paid. By agreement of the prosecution and defense, judgment was to be deferred in the other cases pending the fulfillment of Groves promise to quit the business, Gable to leave town. Gable left and nothing further was done in the cases until last summer when after a search and seizure of a dray-load of liquors in the Groves store, he and Dr. Lawrence were arrested, the trial resulting in a conviction, and their paying fines of $400 each.

After this conviction the Mayor called Grove in and assessed fines of $500 in each case, and it is these sentences, afterwards affirmed by the Common Pleas court, which are now set aside by the Circuit court.

The case may be carried to the Supreme court, but so far this has not been done.

The decision handed down by the Circuit court says in part:

"No court has the power to indefinitely postpone the passing of sentence—to do so, upon promise of good behavior, is in effect usurping the pardoning power with which courts have nothing to do.

"A court may defer the passing of sentence, for a reasonable time, in the interest of justice, for the purpose of better informing itself as to what sentence should be imposed, or for the purpose of enabling the defendant to prepare his prosecution of proceedings in error, but none of these reasons are presented in these cases."

Marked Increase In Peanut Production

In 1899, there were 516,654 acres of land in America devoted to the growing of peanuts, as against $69,887 acres in 1909, an increase of 353,233 acres or 68.4 per cent. In 1909 there were 218,998 farms reporting the growing of peanuts, or 3.4 per cent of the total number of farms in the United States, while in 1899 only 133,914 farms reported, forming 2.3 per cent of the total.

Big Increase of Production.

The present census shows that in 1909 there were produced in the United States 19,416,000 bushels of peanuts, against 11,964,000 bushels in 1899, the increase amounting to 7,452,000 bushels, or 62.3 per cent. The value of the peanuts produced in 1899 was $7,271,000 while in 1909 it was $18,272,000, a gain of $11,001,000, or 151.3 per cent.

Five states produced over 86 per cent of the entire crop in 1909.

North Carolina leads all states and had a production in 1909 of 5,981,000 bushels. This is an increase of 2,520,000 bushels or nearly 73 per cent over 1899, at which time 3,460,000 bushels were produced. The value of the 1909 crop amounted to $5,369,000, as compared with $1,852,000 in 1899, the gain being $3,517,000 or almost 190 per cent.

Virginia is second in rank, having produced 4,284,000 bushels in 1909, as compared with 3,713,000 bushels in 1899, an increase of 571,000 bushels or 15.4 per cent. The value of the crop in the former year was $4,240,000, while in 1899 it was reported as $2,261,000, a gain of $1,979,000, or 87.5 per cent.

Georgia ranks third.

Georgia, with a production of 2,520,000 bushels, followed by Alabama, which produced 2,315,000 bushels, and Florida, which produced 1,909,000 bushels.

The increase during the ten years was 1,347,000 bushels, or 139.2 per cent. The value of the 1909 crop was $2,147,000, while in 1899 it was only $700,000.

Alabama in 1909 reported 1,574,000 bushels, valued at $1,491,000. In 1899 the production amounted to 1,022,000 bushels, and the value, $583,000.

Shaker Property Will Soon Be Sold

The long anticipated sale of the 4,000 acres of land belonging to the United Society of Believers, comprising the Shaker settlement, west of Lebanon, is about to be consummated, according to reports emanating from the office of the trustee, James Fennessey.

Archibald White, a Cincinnati and New York capitalist, is negotiating for the purchase of the property and everything is now ready for the transfer. Mr. White, on a recent visit to the colony, said that it was his purpose to make the land "the garden spot of Ohio". Further than this he did not state, but residents of the county are expecting great things, and Mr. Fennessey declares that they will not be disappointed. It has been intimated that Mr. White will expend $100,000 on improvements.

The sale was inevitable, in view of the fact that the colony is fast passing into oblivion; but 20 members are living of an original colony of 500. All these save two are over 80 years of age. They will all be permitted to spend their last days in the land adopted by their forefathers over a century ago.

PERRY'S VICTORY CENTENNIAL.

Something out of the ordinary in the way of centennial celebration is the promise for the Perry's Victory Centennial to be held in 1913.

Elaborate preparations are now going forward in several states, Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky among them, and the federal government is also making preparations for taking a generous part in this celebration to commemorate the great victory of Commodore Perry on Lake Erie during the war of 1812.

Every school child is familiar with the great painting which hangs in the rotunda of the capitol and which is copied in nearly every geography and history used in the schools of this section of the state.

Commodore Perry left his sinking flag-ship, took the life boat with a small detachment of sailors and carried his flag to another vessel of the fleet, directing successfully the great naval battle which resulted in a victory announced in the much quoted message, "We have met the enemy and they are ours."

The Centennial commissions have planned to have every craft of the national navy that go through the Welland canal join in the commemoration of this famous victory and an immense fleet of cruisers, submarines and torpedo boats will be in Lake Erie for the first time.

The Commissioners are also beginning to send out their "press notices" and we may expect, from this time forward, to read a great deal about the plans for the coming Centennial.

It will be the "nearest home" to Ohio people of any of the great expositions and will receive great encouragement from the people of the Buckeye state, who for some reason or other have always looked upon "Perry's Victory" as an Ohio achievement.

While the people have become surfeited, to an extent, with expositions and celebrations, this is one which should attract great crowds from the central states, because of the peculiar local interest which the residents of those states have always insisted on attaching to the event which the celebration is to commemorate.

PAVING THE STREETS.

The City Council is, just now, both on its own motion and upon the petition of property owners, considering seriously the matter of paving more of our streets in whole or in part with brick.

It is the general opinion that the more consideration the people accord to this proposal the better it will appeal to them. The condition of our streets has long been a problem with which our officials have been compelled to wrestle, and rare indeed are the instances recorded where the officials got the best of the wrestling match.

And while our officials have been compelled to listen to tales of woe and complaints without number, the people who are compelled to travel them, have been jolted into a fury by the "awful condition" of the streets.

While it may cost the property owners a little more at the start to pave the streets with brick, yet once it is done, a good street would be assured for a long time, perhaps during the life of the major portion of the property owners who consent to the improvement.

If the new streets are paved there will be no repairs to be made within a short time and consequently no fight and wrangle with officials to get them to repair the street, which in about eight cases out of ten the effort results in nothing but a row because the municipality is not in financial condition to make the repairs.

While no special plan of doing this paving work is recommended, yet it would seem wise, and in the end economical for the property owners to adopt the paving plan.

If the City Council can work out a plan by which the property owners and the public may, in certain instances, share the expense, and in other cases property owners alone stand the cost, making the paving complete in one case and partial only in the other, the suggestion is a good one.

The adoption of some plan to give Washington more paved streets would be a tremendous boost for the city.

We are shy on paved streets and we must come to the front or suffer the consequences in loss of prestige.

Council can afford to give this paving project earnest consideration now that it is up. It is a serious one. Settled right it means much of good and settled wrong it means back in the rut with a clug.

Let's pave the streets if we can.

Poetry-Today

THE UNKNOWN BIRD.

A bird flew out on a summer day,
Far over the sparkling sea,
His flight was light and his heart
was gay
As he flitted about in the brightest
ray,
For he loved the air of the sea.

The sunlight faded—the day was
gone,
A wind blew out of the sea,
But the reckless bird flew on and on,
And thought, "After night will come
the dawn",
For he was exultant and free.

But the bird grew weak, and the
storm grew strong;
There were monsters in the sea,
Then the morn broke bright, but no
fair song
Broke from the bird, for he was gone
Down into the depth of the sea.

But birds yet fair o'er the ocean fly,
Proud and exultant and free,
And storms still blow and birds still
die,
And they never will cease to fly and
die,
In the boundless home of the sea.

For birds were born with the burning
love
Of the treacherous, powerful sea;
And they will obey the power alone,
Making the ocean their native home,
And forever fly o'er the sea.

DECISIONS REVERSED BY THE CIRCUIT COURT

Attorneys Rogers and Chaffin Win Famous Sabina Bootlegging Cases.

CLAIM MAYOR USURPED POWER

Peculiar Tangle in Which S. T. Grove and Roy Gable Escape Paying Heavy Fines Assessed Two Years After Offense Was Committed, Judgment Having Been Deferred Pending Good Behavior.

Another turn was taken in the famous Grove and Gable liquor cases of Sabina recently, when the Circuit Court reversed the decisions of the former Mayor of Sabina and the Common Pleas court of Clinton county, holding that fines assessed against the two men after a lapse of two years from the time of hearing the cases, was done by the Mayor usurping a power which did not belong to him.

The defendants were represented by Attorneys F. A. Chaffin and W. B. Rogers of this city, and the State by Attorneys J. A. White, J. T. Dean and J. M. Morton of Clinton county. The defendants were S. T. Grove and Roy Gable.

The action was started against the two men on November 15, 1909, and both were charged with keeping a place where intoxicants were sold as a beverage.

On the charge they were tried before Mayor George C. Barns, and on December 17, 1909, the two men withdrew their pleas of not guilty and entered pleas of guilty.

In the first case Groves was fined $200 and the costs, and Gable $100, all of which was paid. By agreement of the prosecution and defense, judgment was to be deferred in the other cases pending the fulfillment of Groves promise to quit the business, Gable to leave town. Gable left and nothing further was done in the cases until last summer when after a search and seizure of a dray-load of liquors in the Groves store, he and Dr. Lawrence were arrested, the trial resulting in a conviction, and their paying fines of $400 each.

After this conviction the Mayor called Groves in and assessed fines of $500 in each case, and it is these sentences, afterwards affirmed by the Common Pleas court, which are now set aside by the Circuit court.

The case may be carried to the Supreme court, but so far this has not been done.

The decision handed down by the Circuit court says in part:

"No court has the power to indefinitely postpone the passing of sentence—to do so, upon promise of good behavior, is in effect usurping the pardoning power with which courts have nothing to do.

"A court may defer the passing of sentence, for a reasonable time, in the interest of justice, for the purpose of better informing itself as to what sentence should be imposed, or for the purpose of enabling the defendant to prepare his prosecution of proceedings in error, but none of these reasons are presented in these cases."

Marked Increase In Peanut Production

In 1899, there were 516,654 acres of land in America devoted to the growing of peanuts, as against 869,887 acres in 1909, an increase of 353,233 acres or 68.4 per cent. In 1909 there were 218,998 farms reporting the growing of peanuts, or 3.4 per cent of the total number of farms in the United States, while in 1899 only 133,914 farms reported, forming 2.3 per cent of the total.

Big Increase of Production.

The present census shows that in 1909 there were produced in the United States 19,416,000 bushels of peanuts, against 11,964,000 bushels in 1899, the increase amounting to 7,452,000 bushels, or 62.3 per cent. The value of the peanuts produced in 1899 was $7,271,000 while in 1909 it was $18,272,000, a gain of $11,001,000, or 151.3 per cent.

Five states produced over 86 per cent of the entire crop in 1909.

North Carolina leads all states and had a production in 1909 of 5,981,000 bushels. This is an increase of 2,520,000 bushels or nearly 73 per cent over 1899, at which time 3,460,000 bushels were produced. The value of the 1909 crop amounted to $5,369,000, as compared with $1,852,000 in 1899, the gain being $3,517,000 or almost 190 per cent.

Virginia is second in rank, having produced 4,284,000 bushels in 1909, as compared with 3,713,000 bushels in 1899, an increase of 571,000 bushels or 15.4 per cent. The value of the crop in the former year was $4,240,000, while in 1899 it was reported as $2,261,000, a gain of $1,979,000, or 87.5 per cent.

Georgia Ranks Third.

Georgia, with a production of 2,000,000 bushels, ranked fourth.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION AT CHICAGO

WILLIAM H. TAFT, Ohio

R. M. LA FOLLETTE, Wisconsin

A. B. CUMMINS, Iowa

THEO. ROOSEVELT, New York

By H. V. ANDREWS.

THE Republican national convention of 1912 will be the greatest in point of numbers in the history of the party and, the political prophets are agreed, the most momentous since war times. It will be the climax of a prenomination contest unexampled in the annals of the United States, if not of the world. For anything like a parallel it is necessary to go back to the Chicago convention of 1880, when Conkling and Garfield were the dashing leaders of the opposing forces of General Grant, who had been put forth for a third term, and of John Sherman, Ohio's choice for the nomination, while Blaine looked up as a formidable competitor. The faithful 306 delegates who stood fast for Grant have become almost as famous in American political history as the Balaklava 600 are in British military history, and from this convention dated the factional strife of "stalwarts" and "half breeds" that rent the party and inspired the fanatic Gaius to take the life of Garfield, who, as a "dark horse," was the winner in the convention.

Popularity of "the Plumed Knight."

Barring Roosevelt in the zenith of his popularity, no Republican aspirant for the presidency since Lincoln has elicited such enthusiasm from his supporters as James G. Blaine. Unsuccessful in the conventions of 1876 and 1880, he secured the nomination in 1884, only to be defeated at the polls. He refused to be considered as a candidate in 1888, but in 1892, though stricken with a mortal disease, he allowed his name to go before the convention, where it evoked the most remarkable demonstration of enthusiasm that a Republican nominating assembly had ever known. But the crowds in the galleries could not vote, and the delegates on the floor when the storm of cheering had passed named Harrison for the presidency.

Since 1892 the Republican conventions have not been memorable for hard fought contests. McKinley at St. Louis in 1896 overcame all opposition on the first ballot. He was renominated without a contest at the Philadelphia convention in 1900, when Roosevelt was chosen to fill second place on the ticket. The latter's nomination in 1904 was a foregone conclusion, and the perfectly oiled machinery of the 1908 convention accomplished the nomination of Taft without a jar.

It is safe to predict that, whatever may happen at the Chicago Coliseum on June 18 and the days following, the proceedings will be distinctly different from those of any Republican convention of recent years.

Beginning of the Roosevelt Boom.

The Roosevelt boom may be said to have started with the announcement of "the seven governors" that they had summoned the colonel from his political retirement to assume the leadership of the "progressive" wing of the party and to propose himself for a third term as president. Having cast "his hat in the ring," the colonel delivered his "ded" to the conservatives (or the "reactionaries," as he prefers to call them) in his Columbus speech, "A Charter of Democracy," before the Ohio constitutional convention. This speech, intended to be the "keynote" of the pre-nomination campaign, was chiefly remarkable for its setting forth of the doctrine of the recall of judicial decisions, which has ever since been one of the fighting issues of the factional contest. President Taft for some time refrained from answering the attacks made upon his administration by his former friend and political sponsor, but at Springfield, Mass., late in April he abandoned his policy of reticence and, declaring that his back was to the wall and that there was nothing for him to do but fight, replied to Colonel Roosevelt in kind. From that time on, recriminations and recriminations have been banded between the two old friends in a manner to make the American public sit up.

Work to Be Done at Chicago.

On June 18 1,078 men and women (for delegates from the suffragist states will have seats in the convention) will assemble in the Chicago Coliseum.

Each state is represented by twice as many delegates as it has votes in the electoral college. Thus Oregon, which has five electoral votes, one for each of its five senators and one for each of its three representatives in congress, has ten delegates. Alaska, Porto Rico, the Philippines and the District of Columbia have two each and Hawaii six.

First of all, the national committee, in which Taft influence is supposed to be preponderant, must sit to pass upon the credentials of would be delegates. The temporary roll of the convention will be made up by this body, and it will determine the procedure of the first session and the choice of temporary chairman. After the temporary chairman has made his speech resolutions will be in order, the committees, including one on resolutions, another on credentials and a third on permanent organization, will be named. The first is charged with the drafting of the platform, the second with the claims of representatives of rival factions to votes in the convention and the third with the recommendation of a permanent presiding officer.

Senator Elihu Root of New York has been mentioned for this honor. The committee on credentials will report at the opening of the second session. If the debate on the platform is long and heated there will be another recess before final action is taken upon it. The platform out of the way, nominations for the first place on the ticket will be in order. This will be the occasion for the big speeches of the convention. It is expected that W. B. Harding of Ohio, last year's unsuccessful candidate for the Buckeye governorship, will place President Taft in nomination, and that Comptroller Prendergast of New York city, who made the most fiery speech of the New York state convention, when he championed the cause of Colonel Roosevelt, will present the name of the rough riding ex-president. These speeches will give the thousands in the galleries their opportunity for participation in the big show. "Demonstrations" of shouts, flag waving and the like, in which the enthusiasm is gauged by the number of minutes the din continues, have become familiar in recent years. Afterward comes the nomination of the candidate for vice president, which is greeted with modified enthusiasm, for, although three Republican vice presidents have been elevated to the chief magistracy by the death of presidents, comparatively little popular interest is awakened in the choice of the man who has second place on the ticket.

"And so home and to bed," as Mr. Pepps would say. At any rate, after his strenuous days in Chicago, that will be the best place for the average delegate.

The "Three P's" in This Campaign.

Most important of the unusual features of the early stages of the presidential campaign of 1912 has been the preferential presidential primary. Agitation for direct primaries as a means of foiling the machinations of bosses has been acute for several years, but this is the first presidential contest in which this device for ascertaining the popular will has figured. Even now, in spite of the attention they have attracted, real preferential primaries for the selection of presidential candidates are established by law in only a small minority of the states. The first state to enact a presidential primary law was Oregon in 1910. The other states which have adopted the innovation in some form or another are California, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, North and South Dakota and Wisconsin. Pennsylvania and Ohio have not preferential primaries in the ordinary sense of the term. They choose congress district delegates to the national convention by primary, but leave the election of delegates at large to a state convention, in accordance with old usage.

Maine and Michigan have preferential primary laws, but they were not operative in this year's campaign. "Voluntary" presidential primaries are in vogue in several states, including Kansas, Georgia, Florida and Rhode Island. In all the states the agitation for the new system was led by the supporters of Roosevelt and Wilson.

North Dakota Brand of Primary.

In North Dakota no restrictions are imposed upon legal voters. Any man may express his preference without regard to his party affiliations at the last election. The North Dakota law requires the delegates to take an oath to vote in exact accordance with their instructions. This means that they cannot shift their vote from La Follette, to whom they are pledged, to any other candidate whose name may come before the convention, nor could they under the terms of the law vote to make unanimous the vote for any other candidate, even though all the other delegates should so vote. This provision, however, is of little practical effect since the delegates, if they ignored it, would be amenable to no punishment under the penal code and since, if they were held to have committed an offense, it would come under the jurisdiction of Illinois and not of North Dakota.

The Illinois primary, which played so important a part in the successes of Colonel Roosevelt, was the result of the passage of an emergency bill signed by Governor Deneen on a sickbed late in March. Under its provisions the vote of each congress district is advisory to the national convention delegates from that district, and the vote of the state at large is advisory to the delegates at large. Petitions for candidates must bear no fewer than 1,500 names.

A National Primary Proposed.

An objection frequently made to the state presidential primary is that it forces the unit rule upon the delegates and nullifies the instruction of the communities which elected the delegates who are in the minority. This objection has been met by the proposition that, instead of state primaries to express a preference for a presidential nominee, national presidential primaries should be held. Senator Cummins this spring introduced a bill to that effect, which failed to excite much enthusiasm in the senate. It proposed president and presidential electors. The names of candidates on primary ballots under the bill would be arranged in separate columns, with one column headed "Independent of party."

If it were passed the Cummins bill would mean the end of the national conventions of the great parties. More than that, it would probably mean the abolition of the electoral college and of the possibility of the election of a presidential candidate who has actually received a smaller popular vote than his unsuccessful opponent.

Among the objections urged against the new primary system is its failure, as its opponents allege, to bring a large proportion of the voters to the polls. The vote in North Dakota was small, and that in New York, which had a primary characterized by Colonel Roosevelt as "a criminal farce," was much smaller comparatively. In Illinois and Pennsylvania, however, the general interest displayed and the size of the vote polled were such as to give little color to this objection.

An Unprecedented Spectacle.

If it has done nothing else the first trial of the presidential primary has furnished the people of the United States a new experience. Never before have a president and an ex-president "stumped" the country in a contest for delegates. After trips to Massachusetts and Maine in the interests of his candidacy Colonel Roosevelt visited Illinois on the eve of the primary election and reaped the reward of his diligence in the overwhelming victory in the Prairie State which gave his candidacy its first decided impetus. Then came the upheaval in Pennsylvania, to which he had given some personal attention, though not so much as to Illinois. As the date of the Massachusetts primaries approached, both the colonel and the president decided that an important job of fence mending called them to the Bay State, and they conducted their repairing operations—strangely enough, as it appeared to the onlookers—with hammer and tongs. The result was so little decisive (many of the Massachusetts voters, by the way, being apparently unequal to the task of casting their ballots according to their real preferences) that both contestants decided to continue their joint debate at long range tactics in Maryland and Ohio. Maryland went—somewhat gingerly, to be sure—for Roosevelt, and the president's advisers thought that the result might have been different if their candidate had talked offener and more strenuously.

So when Roosevelt invaded Ohio, the president's own state, the latter prepared to defend his candidacy with all the energy that a farmer displays when the boys of the neighborhood have served notice of a raid on his watermelon patch. The personalities of the Maryland and Massachusetts struggles were outdone as the two came to grips on the hustings of the Buckeye State. The result justified the president's apprehensions. The audacious invader did get away with the better part of his melons.

Neither Taft nor Roosevelt entered in the support of the head of an administration by the officeholders he had in his favor the tradition that a president is entitled to a renomination. In his fifty-five years William H. Taft has seen much public service, the earlier part of it in judicial positions. He refused an appointment to the supreme court, offered him by President Roosevelt in 1903; but, having previously served as head of the Philippine commission and first civil governor of the Philippines, he accepted the position of secretary of war in the Roosevelt cabinet in 1904. He was nominated for the presidency in 1908, his predecessor throwing all his influence to accomplish that result.

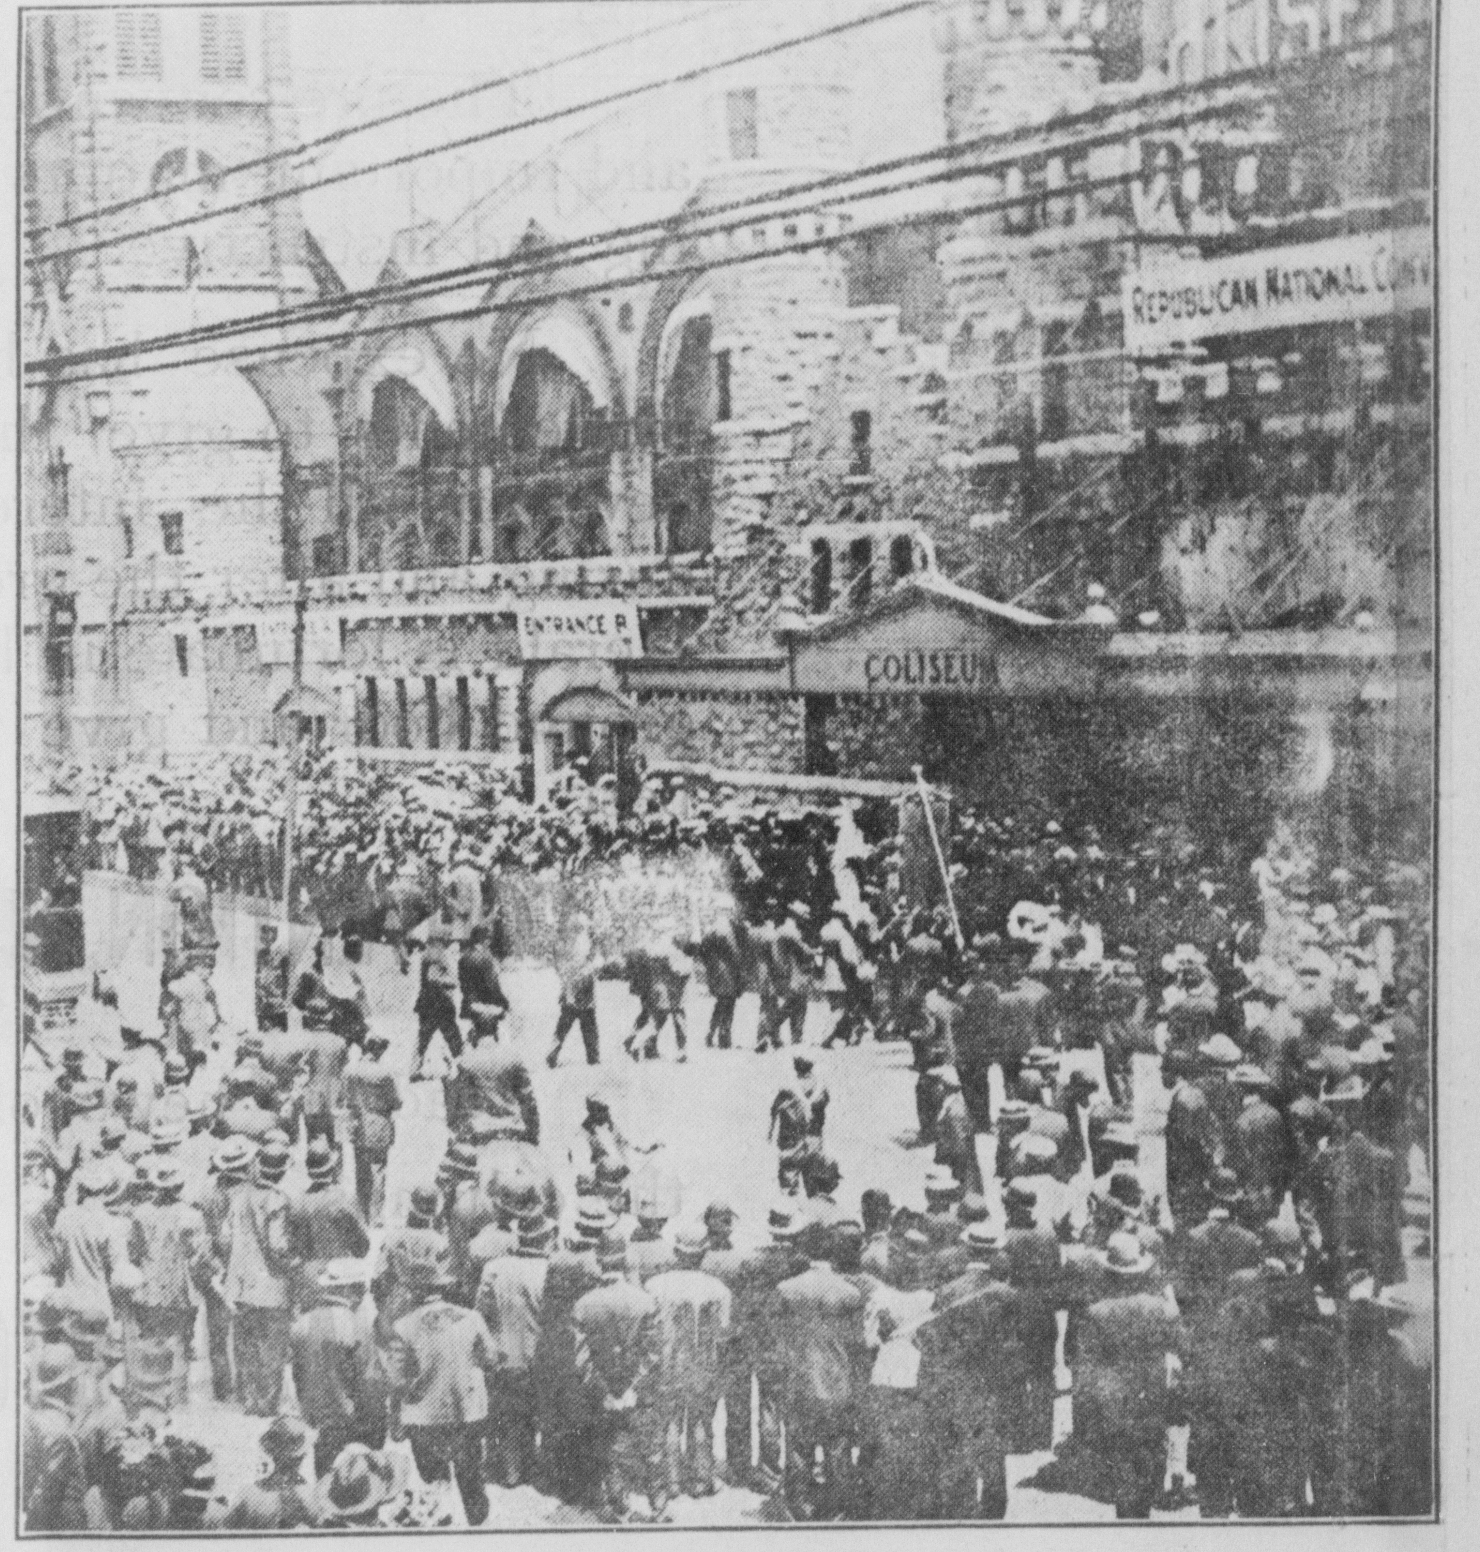

Theodore Roosevelt is the youngest of the candidates, his age being fifty-four. He has put a good deal of living

Fig Gathering In Sunny Italy

The season for gathering the figs in Italy joins hands in October with the vintage; but is really begins in August, owing to a curious system of culture.

Early in August the fig gatherers squirm through the twisting branches from tree top to tree top and "oil the fruit." These fig people are nomadic; they appear and disappear like the wandering harvesters of France. Late in July the masserie are rented to them, a stated sum being paid to the proprietor, a payment that gives to the fig gatherers the right to all the fruit, beginning with the figs and ending with the last cluster of grapes.

Rude huts thatched with straw are built by the proprietor in all his orchards, and in these the gypsylke harvesters live with their families. Sometimes they supplement their narrow quarters with a ragged tent. Three sticks placed crosswise and a kettle in the crotch constitute the kitchen.

Shortly after their arrival the work of forcing the fruit is begun. The methods employed are curious. In one a wad of cotton is dipped in olive oil and gently rubbed on the flower end of the fig. Fig by fig is thus treated, and in eight days the fruit is ready for the market.

Another method consists in gathering in the spring the half-formed fruit, which is strung on ropes. These ropes or garlands are thrown over the branches of the trees and are allowed to decay under the burning sun. There is born of this decay an insect that pierces the growing fig and induces rapid maturity.

The fig, when perfectly ripe, exudes a drop of honey sweet juice at the nether end, which never falls but hangs there, a standing temptation to children and to bees. When fresh, picked at this stage the fig has a rich flavor entirely lost in the dried-fruit.

ILLITERACY AMONG VARIOUS NATIONS

America Ranks Third in Small Percentage, While Germany Is First With Three to Every Ten Thousand Inhabitants. New Manner of Keeping in Touch With American School Children is Planned.

Considered without qualifying circumstances, the latest official reports indicate that only three persons out of 10,000 in Germany are unable to read and write, while the proportion of illiteracy in Great Britain is 150 per 10,000 as against 770 per 10,000 in the United States. These figures are based on a comparison of illiteracy among some of the leading nations which has just been made and issued for free distribution by the United States bureau of education. The bureau has used the preliminary figures of the 1910 census for this country, and the latest official reports available for the others.

Although America seems to make a bad third in the comparison, the bureau of education's publication calls attention to circumstances which tend to put a much better face upon the matter. Thus, the American figures include the entire population over ten years of age, while the German figures cover only the army recruits and the British statistics are based on data drawn wholly from official marriage registers.

Hence the German and British statistics deal only with adults, and generally speaking, with physically and mentally normal adults, while the United States census includes without discrimination everyone above the ten-year age limit.

Again, it is pointed out, the showing of the United States is brought down by reason of the fact that the country has a large population of foreign-born whites as well as of colored persons, among whom the percentage of illiteracy is 12.8 per cent and 39.5 per cent, respectively. The illiteracy among the native whites of this country is only three per cent.

Causes Assigned.

Density of population has an important bearing on the problems incident to bringing the children together for the purpose of education, and therefore is an important consideration when discussing illiteracy statistics.

In this connection the document issued by the bureau of education shows that the number of inhabitants per square mile in the German Empire is more than 310, in Great Britain practically 463, and in this country just a shade over 30. France, with a population of 189.5 persons to the square mile, has 11.4 per cent of illiterates in its population over ten years of age. It should be noted however, according to the bureau of education's report, that this includes a large number of persons who never had the benefit of compulsory education laws, which were enacted in 1882.

The great nations of Western Europe are compared with the United States for the reason, among others, that like this country they all have well-organized systems of public instruction. The bureau of education's examination of five nations of Southern and Eastern Europe shows that the proportion of illiteracy here runs from 26 to 70 per cent. "The lowest ratio for this group," says the bureau of education's monograph, "exceeds that of the southern states of the union, where the greater part of the American population is massed."

Children to Be Catalogued.

Every child in the elementary city schools of the United States is to be card catalogued, and a running history of the entire school career in the grades kept permanently on file, according to plans formulated by investigators whose report has just been issued for free distribution by the United States bureau of education. Although this plan has just been inaugurated, it has the approval of the National educational association, while some 300 cities have already begun to keep the cards. Eventually, it is anticipated, about 6,000 pupils will be thus tabulated. With the new card-catalogue system in full operation throughout the country, definite and scientific answers can be made to a large number of questions the solution to which must now be guessed in large measure.

How many times has a given child been detained in a grade? How many backward, average or retarded children are there in a given city's schools? How does this showing compare with other cities? Does foreign birth affect progress? If so, how? Does kindergarten training help a child through the grades? How does absence from school affect progress? These and other like questions can be answered readily and accurately when the new cumulative card index in which every young American has his place can be drawn upon for the information.

Entries for the Cards.

The form of card contains the following entries, among others: Age of child; date of admission to school; grade; days present; health; conduct; scholarship; place of birth; vaccinated; name and occupation of parent or guardian.

As the child moves from grade to grade, or from building to building, the card containing his past record will follow him, as will also be the case even if he should move from one city to another. In this way his entire past and present in school will be checked off against each other, point by point and year by year.

In addition to introducing the cumulative index card as a means of keeping the school history of every American child, the committee of investigators has also drawn up a uniform method of reporting fiscal statistics, so that cost may be computed upon the same universal basis.

The new scheme of school statistics was drawn up by a committee appointed by the department of superintendence of the National Education association, working in co-operation with the United States bureau of education. The result of this labors is issued as a government document under the title of "Report of the Committee on Uniform Records and Reports," and will be sent free upon request to the United States Commissioners of Education, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C.

Modern methods of art reproduction make it possible for the Hewitt Brothers Soap Company of Dayton, Ohio, to send you a beautiful picture for twenty-five wrappers from Easy Task soap and a two-cent stamp. This clean, pure laundry soap is the one that makes a half day's work of a whole day's washing.

Colonel Nabs
One Delegate

gates were apparently the regular delegates, while the two Taft delegates appeared before the committee as contestants.

On motion of A. I. Vorys of Ohio, these two delegates were split between the Taft and Roosevelt factions on the ground that while the Roosevelt people controlled the congressional district convention, they violated the rule of the Republican party in organizing the convention.

"There is no justification for dividing these delegates," said Senator Borah, the Roosevelt leader in the committee. "You should take them both or none."

"I suppose it's too raw for you to throw out both of the Roosevelt delegates!" roared Francis J. Heney of California, proxy for Thomas Thornton of South Dakota.

Then the committee, by a vote of 33 to 19, refused to seat the two Roosevelt delegates and voted to split the delegation.

As a result of the action of the national committee, 101 delegates whose seats were contested have been awarded to President Taft and one to Colonel Roosevelt.

That the Republican state organization in Kentucky retains its control there through the widest corruption of voters, going so far at times in the battle to carry primary elections to perpetuate control as to import voters from West Virginia, Ohio and Tennessee at 50 cents a head, was told the Republican national committee.

Beware of the habit of constipation. It develops from just a few constipated days, especially in Old People, unless you take yourself in hand.

Coax the jaded bowel muscles back to normal action with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Don't force them to unnatural action with severe medicines or by merely flushing out the intestines with nasty, sickening cathartics.

Dr. Edwards believes in gentleness, persistency and Nature's assistance.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle, yet positive. There is never any pain or gripping when Olive Tablets are used. Just the kind of treatment old persons should have.
